

Travel and Expenses Policy

Kestrel Outfitters, Finance team. In effect from January 1, 2026.

1. Booking travel

Book flights, hotels, and rental cars through the company travel portal, at least 14 days before the trip when you can. Bookings made outside the portal aren't covered unless the portal had no option for your dates.

Fly economy on flights shorter than 6 hours. Premium economy is allowed on flights of 6 hours or longer. Business class needs approval from the Chief Financial Officer.

2. Hotels

Hotel rooms are covered up to $250 a night. In New York, San Francisco, Boston, and Seattle, the limit is $325 a night. Choose a hotel within 3 miles of where you're working.

3. Meals

Meals are covered up to $75 a day while you travel, including tips. Meals with customers are covered at their actual cost, as long as you list who attended.

4. Getting around

Use taxis, rideshares, or public transit between the airport, your hotel, and your work. Rental cars are covered when they cost less than taxis would, and you need to buy the rental company's damage insurance.

5. Receipts

Keep an itemized receipt for every expense over $25. Expenses of $25 or less don't need a receipt, but still need a short description. A credit card statement isn't a receipt.

6. Submitting expenses

Submit your expenses in the expense tool within 30 days after the trip ends. Expenses submitted later need approval from your department head. Approved expenses are paid back with your next paycheck.

7. What isn't reimbursed

We don't reimburse alcohol, personal entertainment, seat or class upgrades you choose yourself, travel insurance, or fines such as parking and speeding tickets.

8. Corporate cards

Employees who travel more than four times a year can ask Finance for a corporate card. Corporate card charges still need receipts and still need to be submitted within 30 days.
